Accounting post budget surveys

After you have prepared the financial statements the company has to detect a variety of business related facts right at the end of the year, such as the payment of taxes, the allocation, the remittance of accruals and invoices to be received and issue.

Subjective methods of forecasting

For the preparation of a business plan often using experience-based methods, the insights of executives, staff, external experts and vendors.

A) THE CONTRIBUTION OF SALES FORCE: it is a method used to predict market demand and sales and is based on verbal consultation of representatives and dealers.

B) THE DELPHI METHOD AND THE USE OF EXPERTS: is the technical sector participation, respondents using questionnaires based on the area of expertise. The judgment is made individually and anonymously, and then all the reviews are collected and processed. In general, consultation and feedback stages are at least 3 and max 6.

C) THE SYSTEM OF THE PANEL: internal and external individuals achieve more valid predictions based on a progressive consensus.

D) THE METHOD analogy: is used to estimate the likely evolution of a product or a market for which you do not have enough information and it is not appropriate to carry out specific field studies, for competitive reasons prudence. They examine similar products to the one under consideration.

E) RATING-RANKING METHOD: creating a list of assessment and comparison of a qualitative nature
